How Language Helps Shape Our Response to Gender-Based Violence

Thursday May 30, 2013 1:00 - 3:00

LOCATION HAS CHANGED!

Albany Law School, Albany, NY

This free and interactive session will explore the language of domestic violence and sexual assault: how we talk and write about these crimes. The workshop will discuss examples of the language often used and explore how to discuss domestic violence and sexual assault in a way that more accurately depicts the crime.

Presented by:
Claudia J. Bayliff. Esq.
Project Attorney for Legal Momentum's
National Judicial Education Program
